

2013 Florida Sales Tax Holiday - Questions & Answers

General Questions

1. How is this year's sales tax holiday different from last year's holiday?

The August 2013 tax holiday differs from last year's holiday as listed below:

August 2 – 4, 2013 Holiday	Last Year's Tax Holiday (August 2012)
No tax is due on certain clothing, footwear, and accessories selling for $75 or less.	Same
No tax is due on certain school supplies selling for $15 or less.	Same
Books are NOT tax-exempt.	Same
No tax is due on computers and certain related accessories selling for $750 or less per item, when purchased for noncommercial home or personal use.	There was no exemption for computers and certain related accessories.

2. Where can I get complete information about this year's sales tax holiday? Tax Information Publication (TIP 13A01-04) describes the tax holiday dates, includes definitions of "clothing," "school supplies," "personal computers," and "related computer accessories" and also lists examples of taxable and exempt clothing, footwear, accessories, school supplies, computers, and related computer accessories. This TIP, mailed to all registered sales tax dealers in June, is also posted on the Department's website: www.myflorida.com/dor. If you want to read the law authorizing this holiday, you can find Chapter 2013-42, Laws of Florida, at: http://laws.flrules.org/files/Ch_2013_042.pdf.

3. Why isn't _____ (any item not listed) included in the sales tax holiday for school supplies?

Only specific items were identified as exempt school supplies in the law passed by the 2013 Florida Legislature and approved by the Governor. No other items are authorized. The labeling or packaging of the item usually determines whether the item may be purchased tax-exempt during the three-day tax holiday. For example:

- Dress, garden, and work gloves sold for $75 or less are exempt but athletic gloves are taxable because sporting equipment is excluded from the definition of clothing.
- Batteries designed for a computer are exempt but regular batteries used to operate a flashlight, for example, are taxable because flashlight batteries are not a computer related accessory.
- Handbags and purses sold for $75 or less are exempt but briefcases, suitcases, garment bags, and computer bags are taxable because those items are not "intended to be worn on or about the human body," which is a requirement of the exemption.
- Cases for electronic devices are taxable because cases are not listed as exempt computer related accessories.
- Printers and scanners sold for $750 or less per item are exempt but copy machines are taxable because copy machines are not a computer related accessory under the exemption.

4. Are dealers responsible for correctly charging sales tax during the tax holiday? How will business owners know what items are exempt from sales tax?

Yes. TIP 13A01-04 that the Department mailed to all registered sales and use tax dealers includes lists of taxable and tax-exempt items that may be copied and provided to employees who work the cash registers. The TIP is also posted on the Department's website: www.myflorida.com/dor.

The list of clothing and school supply items is extensive, but not all inclusive. Whether a school supply item qualifies as tax-exempt is based on the labeling or packaging of the item.

If you have a question about a specific item not listed, contact the Department at 800-352-3671, or visit our website: www.myflorida.com/dor.

5. Does the $75 or less tax exemption apply to the first $75 of an item of clothing being purchased? In other words, if the selling price of an item of clothing is $80, is the first $75 exempt from sales tax?

No. The tax exemption applies to items selling for $75 or less. If an item sells for more than $75 ($80 in this example), tax is due on the entire selling price.

6. Does the $15 or less tax exemption apply to the first $15 of a school supply item being purchased? In other words, if the selling price of a school supply item is $20, is the first $15 exempt from sales tax?

No. The exemption applies to school supply items selling for $15 or less. If an item sells for more than $15 ($20 in this example), tax is due on the entire selling price.

7. Can I buy 3 shirts each costing $75 at the same time and have each shirt be exempt from tax?

Yes, you can buy more than one item at a time on the same invoice. You do not have to purchase each item separately to get the tax break. The exemption is based on the sales price of each item, not the total sales amount on an invoice therefore, you do not need to buy each shirt separately. Every eligible item of clothing with a sales price of $75 or less sold during the tax holiday period will be exempt from sales tax. Similarly, every qualified school supply item with a sales price of $15 or less sold during the tax holiday period will be exempt from sales tax. And, every qualified personal computer and related computer accessory with a sales price of $750 or less per item will be exempt from sales tax.

8. Is there a limit on the number of items I can purchase tax exempt during the three-day sales tax holiday?

No. The exemption is based on the sales price of the item, not the total invoice amount. Each eligible item of clothing with a selling price of $75 or less, each eligible school supply item with a selling price of $15 or less, and each eligible computer and related computer accessory with a selling price of $750 or less, bought during the three-day tax holiday period, is exempt from sales tax.

9. If a keychain is included with a wallet or purse, is the entire purchase taxable?

Yes. Tax-exempt items sold in sets with taxable items are subject to tax. Exempt items must be sold as a separate item in order to qualify for the exemption. Sets that include both exempt items and taxable items are subject to tax. Exempt items listed on the same invoice as taxable items are exempt (when they are separately identified and separately priced).

10. Why are briefcases, suitcases, and other garment bags not exempt from tax during the holiday period?

The law (Chapter 2013-42, Laws of Florida) specifically states that briefcases, suitcases, and other garment bags are NOT tax-exempt during the sales tax holiday period.

11. Why are cellular phones, video game consoles, digital media receivers, and televisions not exempt from tax during the holiday period?

The law (Chapter 2013-42, Laws of Florida) specifically states that cellular phones, video game consoles, digital media receivers, televisions, and any devices that are not primarily designed to process data are NOT tax-exempt during the tax holiday period.

12. Do business owners have the option of not participating in the sales tax holiday?

No. If a business owner mistakenly charges tax during the holiday, the owner should refund the tax to customers. If the tax cannot be refunded, the business owner must send the tax to the Department.

13. Are certain business locations not included in the sales tax holiday?

Theme parks, entertainment complexes, public lodging establishments, and airports are excluded from participating in the sales tax holiday. Sales at any of these establishments are taxable as usual.

14. What should a business owner do if he mistakenly collects tax during the sales tax holiday?

If sales tax is collected in error, the business owner should refund this tax to customers. If the tax cannot be refunded, the business owner must send the tax to the Department.

15. I bought some exempt items and the store owner charged me tax. What should I do?

Take your receipt to the store owner and ask for a refund of the tax.

Business Owner Questions

16. I don't sell clothes or school supplies. Why did I get the sales tax holiday Tax Information Publication (TIP)?

The TIP was mailed to all registered taxpayers with active sales and use tax accounts (approximately 556,000 accounts) to inform all dealers who sell clothing or exempt items about the sales tax holiday. Although you do not sell clothing or other exempt items, many dealers whose primary business is something other than selling clothing, school supplies, or computers may need this information. For example, a small grocery store may sell t-shirts, sandals, hats, pens, pencils, or an electronic book reader. If the sales tax holiday does not apply to any portion of your business, please disregard the TIP.

17. My business is closed. Why am I still getting mail from the Department of Revenue? Cancel my account.

If you received a TIP, your account was categorized as active and required-to-file in June when the Department created the TIP mailing list. To close your account, you must notify us in writing or visit our website to "Request a Change of Address and/or Account Status" to tell us you want to cancel the account. When your account is cancelled, you should not receive any more TIPs from the Department.

You can send a request to cancel your account online at:

18. Do I need to change my accounting system to show the temporary exemptions?

No, your accounting system should adequately identify all tax-exempt items sold. Exempt sales made during the tax holiday must be documented in the same manner as other exempt sales made throughout the year.

Refunds/Exchanges

19. If a customer buys an eligible item before the three-day tax holiday and then exchanges it during the tax holiday for another eligible item, is the customer due a refund or a credit of tax?

The customer should get a full refund or credit including tax, for the exchanged item, assuming there is proof that tax was paid. No tax is due on the eligible item purchased during the holiday.

20. If a customer requests a refund or exchange between August 2 and October 31, 2013, without a sales receipt, may the business owner refund the tax?

For the period August 2, 2013 through October 31, 2013, when a customer returns an item that would qualify for the exemption, no refund of tax may be given unless the customer provides a receipt or invoice showing tax was paid, or the retailer has documentation to verify that the tax was paid on the specific item.

21. If a customer returns an exempt item and is given a different item of equal price after the holiday period, is sales tax due on the new item?

If a customer buys a tax-exempt item during the tax holiday period and later exchanges it for the same item (different size, different color, etc.), no tax will be due, even if the exchange is made after the exemption period.

If a customer buys an item during the tax holiday period and later returns the item after the exemption period and gets a different item, sales tax will apply to the new purchase even if it is the same price. For example, if a shirt is returned after the tax holiday period and the customer buys a pair of pants, tax is due on the price of the new pants.

Coupons, Rebates, and Discounts

22. Why does a store discount coupon reduce the sales price of an eligible item but a manufacturer's coupon or rebate does not?

When a store accepts a manufacturer's coupon, the store does not have any loss in the profit made on the sale. The manufacturer or another third party reimburses the store for the face value of the coupon. In other words, the purchaser uses the coupon like cash and the store receives the cash when the coupons are redeemed with the manufacturer. Therefore, the sales price subject to tax is based on the total selling price before deducting the coupon.

Manufacturer's coupon example: If a customer buys a purse for $85 and presents a $15 manufacturer's coupon, the selling price of the purse is $85 and it is taxable. The $15 coupon is part of the consideration paid by the manufacturer to the retailer; therefore, it does not reduce the retail selling price of the purse.

Rebate example: Rebates occur after the sale and do not affect the sales price of an item purchased. A jacket sells for $85. The customer receives a $10 rebate from the manufacturer. The rebate occurs after the sale, so it does not reduce the sales price of the jacket. Tax is due on $85.

When a store issues a store discount coupon, the store reduces the sales price of the item by an amount equal to the face value of the coupon. The store reduces its profit on the sale, and the value of the coupon is not recovered from any other party. This type of coupon is a retailer's discount that is deducted from the sales price before computing sales tax. Any additional value assigned by the retailer, such as to double or triple the coupon is also excluded from the sales price.

Store discount coupon example: A customer buys a purse for $85 and the store offers a discount coupon of 20%. The selling price of the purse is $68, and the purse is tax-exempt if purchased during the tax holiday. (Store discount coupons and discounts reduce the sales price of an item.)

Gift Certificates

23. If a gift certificate for clothing is purchased during the sales tax holiday but the customer uses the certificate after the sales tax holiday, can the customer use the gift certificate to make tax-exempt purchases?

No, the purchase of the eligible item must be made during the three-day sales tax holiday to be exempt from tax. When eligible items are purchased during the tax holiday using a gift certificate, the eligible items qualify for the exemption, regardless of when the gift certificate was purchased.

Rain Checks

24. Why can't rain checks issued during the sales tax holiday be used after the holiday to make tax-exempt purchases?

To be exempt from tax, the clothing or other eligible item must be purchased during the sales tax holiday. When a rain check is issued, a sale has not occurred. The sale occurs when the rain check is redeemed and the specified item is purchased. Therefore, if an item is purchased using a rain check after the tax-exemption period, the item is taxable.

Layaway Sales

25. Are clothing items that are put on layaway during the three-day tax holiday, eligible for the tax exemption?

Yes. Eligible items placed on layaway (set aside for a customer who makes a deposit, agrees to pay the balance of the purchase price over a period of time, and receives the merchandise at the end of the payment period) during the sales tax holiday are exempt from tax. Also, if the final payment on a layaway order of eligible items is made and the merchandise is given to the customer during the holiday period, the items are exempt from tax, regardless of when they were placed on layaway.

Mail Order or Internet Sales

26. If I buy eligible items by mail order (normally I pay use tax on Form DR-15MO), do I get the exemption?

Yes. All purchases of eligible items during the sales tax holiday are exempt from tax, including purchases made by mail order. This exemption includes the use tax normally paid on Internet purchases.

27. How does the exemption apply to sales over the Internet?

Sales over the Internet are treated the same as mail-order sales.

28. How do I proportionally allocate shipping charges between the items ordered on a mail-order sale?

To proportionally allocate the shipping charges, the amount of each item should be divided by the total amount of the items ordered to obtain the percentage that each item bears to the total order. Then multiply the total shipping charge by the percentage for each item to determine the amount of the shipping charge applicable to that item.

The shipping charge for each item must be separately stated on the invoice to the customer. The shipping charge is part of the selling price when determining if an item meets the tax-exempt threshold.

For example, a customer orders a $75 dress and a $25 shirt, for a total of $100. The shipping charge is $10. Example: $$25 / $100 = 25\%$ (25 divided by 100 equals 25%). Therefore, 25% or $2.50 of the shipping charge is allocated to the shirt, and included as part of the selling price of the shirt ($27.50). The other 75% ($7.50) is included in the selling price of the dress, making the price of the dress $82.50, which would not qualify for the exemption.

Records and Reporting

29. Do I need to account for exempt sales during the tax holiday differently?

No, there are no additional record-keeping requirements. You must maintain your records and document exempt sales as required by current law.

Merchant's License or Other Fees (Two Cities in Bay County Only)

- 30. In Panama City and Panama City Beach, Florida, a 1% merchant's license fee (sometimes referred to as a gross receipts fee) is added to the sales price of clothing, school supplies, or computers and related computer accessories.

These two cities are the only locations in Florida where the 1% merchant's license fee is included in the total sales price of an item, even if separately stated on an invoice. When stores located in these two cities charge customers the 1 percent fee, it is part of the sales price subject to sales tax. Therefore, when the price of the item plus the 1% merchant's license fee makes the total sales price above the $75 threshold for clothing, $15 threshold for school supplies, or $750 threshold for computers and related computer accessories for the sales tax exemption, the items purchased are taxable.

Computer Related Questions

- 31. Does a laptop or desktop computer that comes preloaded with games, such as solitaire, qualify for the exemption?

Yes, provided the computer is purchased for home or personal use. Computers that otherwise meet the criteria for the exemption will still be eligible even if they come preloaded with games such as solitaire.

- 32. What is nonrecreational software?

Nonrecreational software includes software such as antivirus, word processing, financial, database, and educational software. Gaming software is not exempt from tax.

- 33. What are peripheral devices?

Peripheral devices include items such as computer cables; compact disk drives; keyboards, microphones, docking stations, and web cameras for computers; zip drives, flash drives, thumb drives, and other data storage devices; printers and printer cartridges; routers; scanners; modems; etc. Please refer to the list of taxable and tax-exempt computers and related accessories.
